General information of the Program

Aristotle once said, "Worms are the Intestines of the Earth". Using worms to convert decomposing food waste into nutrient-rich fertilizer is simple, inexpensive, energy efficient, and a great way to teach students to become life-long recyclers. Vermicomposting technology is known throughout the world.

Vermicomposting is analogous to composting in that similar feedstock-organic residuals -are used. Both systems utilize microbial activity to break down organic matter in the moist, aerobic environment. Vermicomposting is however faster, produces fewer odors and produces a superior product. But vermicomposting requires greater surface area, more moisture, and is susceptible to heat, high salt levels, high ammonia levels, and substances that may be toxic to earthworms. Of the 4400 identified earthworm species, specific species of litter dwelling earthworms are required for this purpose. Vermicomposting in developing countries could prove to be useful in many instances. Where accumulation of food wastes, paper, cardboard, agriculture waste, manures and biosolids is problematic, composting and vermicomposting offer potential to turn waste material into a valuable soil amendment.

❖ 1. Aims and Objectives -

Certificate course in Dairy Technology

Introduction/Rationale

India is agricultural country. Seventy percent of the total population of India is dependent on agriculture. Maharashtra especially its western part is agricultural hub. Our College is located in such agricultural hub where 80 to 85 % of students are belonging to farmer community. The western Maharashtra is a sugar belt where the farmers are associated with Dairy industry as an agro based side business. Most of the farmers use to tame cow and buffalos for milk and sell the milk to the dairy industry.

Objectives

The certificate course will be run with the following objectives.

- To educate the pupil and stake holders with techniques of new era of their own family business.
- ii. To develop skills of their own family business.
- iii. To inculcate thinking abilities about new ideas of their own family business.
- To transfer the traditional processes of milking and its use in technological way.
- v. To convert farmer communities in to business communities.
- vi. To increase the earning sources from their traditional business.
- vii. To upgrade living standards by increasing earning sources.

Availability of industry & market survey

As mentioned in introduction the college is located in rural area where the students are from agricultural background. The students are from Kolhapur and Sangli districts where numbers of Milk processing industries are established.

Course Details

A) Course Title: Design and Analysis of Photovoltaic Systems

B) Course Purpose:

The purpose of this course is to provide students with the knowledge and skills required to design, analyze, and optimize photovoltaic systems for various applications. Students will learn about system components, sizing, energy yield estimation, economic considerations, and integration of photovoltaic systems into different settings.

C) Objectives:

The course "Design and Analysis of Photovoltaic Systems" aims to provide students with a comprehensive understanding of photovoltaic (PV) systems, from the fundamental principles of solar energy conversion to the practical design and analysis of PV installations. The objectives of the course include:

- 1. Understanding Solar Energy Conversion: Students will gain a solid foundation in the principles of solar energy conversion, including the physics of semiconductors, photovoltaic effect, and different types of solar cells. They will learn how sunlight is converted into electrical energy in photovoltaic systems.
- 2. PV System Components and Configurations: Students will learn about the different components of a photovoltaic system, such as solar panels, inverters, batteries (if applicable), and other balance-of-system components. They will understand various system configurations, including grid-connected and off-grid setups.
- 3.System Design Principles: The course will teach students how to design efficient and effective PV systems based on factors such as location, available sunlight, load requirements, and budget constraints. This includes sizing the system components appropriately to match energy generation with consumption.
- 4. Performance Analysis: Students will learn how to analyze the performance of photovoltaic systems. This involves evaluating energy output, efficiency, and reliability. They will also study the impact of factors like shading, temperature, and soiling on system performance.
- 5. Economic and Financial Analysis: The course will cover the economic aspects of PV system design, including cost estimation, return on investment (ROI), payback periods, and financial incentives like government subsidies or net metering programs.

- 6. Environmental Impact: Students will explore the environmental benefits of using solar energy, including reduced greenhouse gas emissions and dependence on fossil fuels. They will also examine the life cycle analysis of PV systems, considering aspects such as manufacturing, installation, and disposal.

ADVANCED CERTIFICATE COURSE IN GEOINFORMATICS

Introduction

Modern Science and technology have made tremendous progress in all possible fields. GIS (Geographical Information System) has been emerged a new Spatial Information Technology. In the current changing global scenario, there is more demand and scope for professionally trained graduate. To meet this challenge, starting of need based, skill enhancing and career oriented courses facilitate job, self-employment and empowerment of the students.

GIS is a powerful technology in present era that has transformed the way we understand and analyze the world around us. It enables us to store, manage and analyze geospatial data to provide concrete updated information for decisions in a multiplicity of sectors. With its ability to understand and visualize geospatial data, optimize planning and decision making, enhance emergency response and disaster management, improve environmental management and enhance business operations and marketing, GIS has proven to be an indispensable tool.

Geoinformatics is a course that deals with the science and technology which uses and also develops information science to look after the problems of geography, geosciences and cartography and branches related to science and engineering. The Geoinformatics course covers subjects that deal with advanced lessons in space technologies, remote sensing, data analysis, geospatial models, analysis networks etc.

It is a multidisciplinary subject that combines various aspects of science including physics, chemistry, biology, mathematics, etc. into one unit and makes use of technology and science to address and solve real-world issues. It deals with spatial information and using geo-visualization, it helps establish a connection among people, locations, etc. There are many software like ArchGIS, QGIS, Micro Station, GRASS, SAGA, ENVI, etc. that are used in this field for GIS analysis and other geospatial operations.

Keeping in view the need for developing trained man-power, technological application and creating job opportunities, the six months course in Geoinformatics has been proposed for the undergraduate students.

Objectives:

The course aims to achieve the following objectives:

- 1. To introduce the students a new Geotechnology of Geoinformatics.
- 2. To develop the skills of spatial data acquisition, analysis and mapping with GIS.
- 3. To acquaint the students with the application value of spatial information technology.

- 4. To offer practical training to the students and make them GIS experts.
- 5. To generate job opportunities in the corporate as well as private sector.

Scope of the Course:

Better information leads to better decisions. In order to get that information, we need the right set of tools and techniques. Information technology (IT) overlies Earth Sciences significantly. Geography as a spatial science shares the study of Earth Sciences in distinct way. Geoinformatics has been an innovative tool and technique that provides a spatial data analysis which will be used for the solution of geo, agriculture, transportation, industry, socio-economic problems, ecological, environmental etc. at the local, regional, national and global level.

Geoinformatics, as the name itself indicates, is a combination of two terms, Geography and Information. Hence, the field of Geoinformatics is a vast one. Several areas concern this beautiful study. For instance, GPS, GIS, Remote Sensing, Climatology, Meteorology, Cartography, Aerial Photography, Hydrology, Photogrammetry, etc., to name a few.

Prospect:

Geoinformatics is a branch of science that deals with issues of geosciences, cartography, geography and other streams related to science, engineering and technology. It is a multidisciplinary subject that combines various aspects of science including physics, chemistry, biology, mathematics, etc. into one unit and makes use of technology and science to address and solve real-world issues. It deals with spatial information and using geo-visualization, it helps establish a connection among people, locations, etc. Following are the some areas where students can make their carriers:

- Image Analyst
- Project Coordinator
- Project Manager
- Geographical Information Systems (GIS)Expert
- Research Scholar
- · Senior System Executive
- Research Associate
- Geographical Information Systems (GIS)Environment Analyst
- Geo-Spatial Software Engineer
- Cartographer
